The logo for IndustryWeek U.S. 500. It features the word "IndustryWeek" in a red and white sans-serif font, with "Industry" in red and "Week" in white. This is flanked by two black chevron shapes pointing outwards. Below this, "U.S. 500" is written in a large, bold, sans-serif font, with "U.S." in blue and "500" in red. A thin horizontal line separates this from the text "America's Largest Manufacturers" below, which is in a red and black sans-serif font.

U.S. 500

America's Largest Manufacturers

THE IW U.S. 500 INCLUDES:

- Manufacturing companies with a majority of their business in a manufacturing industry
- Companies that generated less than 50% of revenues from manufacturing, but more revenue from manufacturing than the lowest-revenue-producing companies on this year's list.
- Oil and gas companies that derive at least 50% of their revenues from the refining of oil and gas products.
- Companies that derive at least 50% of their revenues from the manufacture of mined materials.

Erik L. Fine, a Charlotte, N.C.-based information consultant involved in the IW U.S. 500 since its inception, oversaw the analysis and data-collection effort.
